Re: Coastal Zone Consistency for Corps Reference No. 201100131, TSF Lease – Second Growth Investors LLC, Mason County, Washington

Dear Erin Ewald:

On December 21, 2022, the Department of Ecology received a Certification of Consistency with the Washington State Coastal Zone Management Program (CZMP) for the above project.

This determination is for the proposal to continue cultivating geoduck on approximately 3 acres of privately-owned tidelands between 0.0ft and -4.5ft Mean Lower Low Water. There is no eelgrass present at the site. Access to the project areas occurs primarily by boat. Managers may occasionally access the farm from the adjacent upland State Park access point in order to check on crew and crop or following storm events to ensure gear is secure.

PVC or HDPE mesh nursery tubes, approximately 9 inches in length, are manually inserted into lower intertidal substrate by hand at a density of approximately one tube per square foot. Three to four juvenile geoduck are then placed in each tube. Area netting may be placed over the tubes and is secured to the substrate with rebar stakes every 25 feet. After approximately 12-15 months, the tubes are removed, and the area may be covered with area netting. The net is removed once it has been determined the geoduck are able to evade predation (after about 3 to 6 months) and the beach is left undisturbed until harvest.

Harvest occurs approximately 5-7 years after planting. The geoducks are harvested in the intertidal zone at low tide or by divers at high tide. This harvest method allows the hand extraction of geoducks, which burrow as deep as 3 feet. The harvester inserts the probe in the substrate next to an exposed geoduck siphon or the hole left when the siphon is retracted. By discharging pressurized water around the geoduck, the sediment is loosened, and the clam is removed by hand. Geoduck harvesting occurs year-round.

The project site is located on tidelands within Case Inlet, on parcel number 120073470030, near Shelton, Mason County, Washington; Section 7, Township 20 North, Range 1 West; WRIA 14, Kennedy-Goldsborough Watershed. Pursuant to Section 307(c)(3) of the Coastal Zone Management Act of 1972 as amended, Ecology concurs with Taylor Shellfish’s determination that the proposed work is consistent with Washington’s CZMP.
