

Hanford Careers

Hanford Past

Hanford was built by men and women who came from all across the US to work on a top secret project that helped end WWII.

- Engineers and mathematicians
- Chemists and physicists
- Concrete and metal workers
- Secretaries
- Cooks, janitors and guards

Consider Civil Service

Help protect, preserve, and enhance Washington's environment for current and future generations while enjoying:

- Training and skill development
- Flexible schedules and telework options
- Commute incentives
- Steady benefits
- Tuition assistance

Present & Future

Today Hanford cleanup activities employ about 7,500 people in STEM careers, record keeping and administration, communications and more. Cleanup will go on at least 40 more years! We'll continue to need:

- Engineers and chemists
- Geologists and hydrogeologists
- Electricians, pipefitters, other craft workers, and equipment operators
- Biologists and archaeologists
- IT and modeling experts
- Records, communications, and administrative professionals.

Where do you fit in?

Whether you like big city energy, or small town quiet, rain or sun, four seasons or mild year round, Washington has a place for you!
