SPREADING THE WORD ABOUT RIPARIAN RESTORATION

Ecology works with partners and landowners across the state to help fund, install, and maintain healthy riparian habitats. We strive to support communities, landowners, and water quality by promoting sustainable landuse practices, including streamside vegetation.

Connecting with communities

- Interpretive & educational signs
- Watershed mailers & postcards
- Community meetings & events
- Landowner assistance letters
- School curriculums

TURNING TALK INTO ACTION

Ecology provides funding for clean water solutions

There are many resources that landowners may have access to that can help keep Washington's water ways healthy. Ecology and our partners provide funding and technical assistance for a variety of practices, including livestock fencing, conservation tillage, as well as riparian habitat planting and maintenance.

We are here to help

Contact your regional Ecology field staff or email nonpoint@ecy.wa.gov to learn more about resources that may be available to you.
