Dear Washington Department of Ecology, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, and Cowlitz County,

I support the "no action" alternative in the Millennium Bulk Terminals Draft Environmental Impact Statement (EIS). Millennium's proposed coal export terminal would cause unmitigable harm to the Columbia River Gorge National Scenic Area and communities throughout the Northwest, with the most intense impacts felt in Longview, Washington near the proposed terminal site. The project harms our health and safety, air and water quality, and natural resources. I urge your agencies to protect public health and the environment by rejecting this coal export terminal.

Climate Change: Washington State is a national leader in the fight to combat climate change. Even if the agencies only considered the rail and vessel emissions from transporting 44 million tons of coal a year, this project would be one of the biggest greenhouse gas emitters in Washington State. Coal export undermines the state's hard work to combat climate change and protect future generations.

Health & the Environment: The Draft EIS reveals many intolerable serious impacts to human health and the environment. It dismisses other impacts without a valid basis. I urge the agencies to incorporate the best available science, real world examples, and the Health Impact Assessment in the Final EIS.

Coal Dust: Every loaded train that would deliver coal to this facility would pass through the Columbia River Gorge National Scenic Area in uncovered cars. There is already a well-documented issue with coal dust blowing and falling off existing coal trains and contaminating the air and water. At some key sites in the Columbia River Gorge the problem is so severe that coal accumulates in inches-thick layers from the tracks to the banks of the Columbia River. Coal is being discharged directly into the Columbia River and its tributaries in violation of the Clean Water Act. Coal is extremely toxic and this dust contributes both to respiratory illness and contamination of the natural environment and aquatic life. The DEIS fails to adequately consider the amount of coal dust discharged from coal trains, the impacts of this coal dust on the scenic, natural, cultural and recreation resources of the Columbia River Gorge National Scenic Area, and the clear violations of the federal Clean Water Act that would result from the project.

Impacts on Protected Regions: The Columbia River Gorge National Scenic Area is just one of many protected and sensitive areas that would be negatively impacted by coal trains that would service this facility. Wetlands, wildlife refuges, state parks, tribal fishing areas, critical fish, wildlife and plant habitat, recreation, and scenic resources would be harmed by the impacts of this facility, its trains, and the expansion of rail lines needed to accommodate the increase in rail traffic.

Rail Traffic: The Draft EIS demonstrates Millennium would have a severe impact on rail and road congestion. Because Millennium cannot fix this significant harm, from mine to terminal, the agencies should deny permits.

Weak & Unenforceable Mitigation: In some instances, the Draft EIS claims mitigation can reduce coal dust, rail traffic, and other project impacts. For example, to mitigate coal dust from the terminal, the Draft EIS proposes a reporting process for coal dust complaints. This is unacceptable. A phone call or email to complain about coal dust fouling a person's lungs, home, and river is not "mitigation." The agencies should revise the Draft EIS and remove inadequate, unsupported, and unenforceable mitigation.

The findings in the DEIS for the massive proposed Millennium Bulk Terminals in Longview, Washington show that the risks of increased train and coal bunker traffic, train accidents, waterway contamination, air pollution, noise, negative impacts on tribal culture and resources, harm to priority mammal, fish, and bird species, and vehicle delays at railroad crossings cannot be fully mitigated and the environmental and human health harm could be significant. Due to these numerous and enormous risks, we ask that you choose the No-Action Alternative and reject the Millennium Bulk Terminals coal export proposal. The proposed coal export terminal is only 5 miles upstream from Crims Island which supports critical habitat for the federal threatened and state endangered Streaked Horned Lark. Purple Martin nest sites have been documented just 2 miles from the terminal site at Coal Creek Slough one of two nearby Washington State Birding Trail sites. Suitable nesting and foraging habitat for listed species such as the Bald Eagle, Peregrine Falcon, Vaux's Swift, and several waterfowl species including climate-sensitive Barrow's Goldeneye exist well within the reach of anticipated coal dust deposits. In particular, Lord Island supports significant numbers of wintering ducks and geese. The rail and vessel corridors servicing the proposed coal export terminal support habitats of critical importance to a variety of bird species. The Columbia River Estuary represents prime stopover habitat for migratory shorebirds and waterfowl within the Pacific Flyway. The western extent of the estuary is a designated Western Hemisphere Shorebird Reserve Network site, 1 supporting large numbers of shorebirds during migration. Some of the largest colonies of Caspian Terns and Double-Crested Cormorants in the world nest and roost on islands within the estuary. 2 Avian species lists for the estuary top 300 species, reflecting the diverse habitats available.3 The DEIS states there will be adverse impacts to shoreline vegetation and nearshore fish, specifically forage fish species such as eulachon upon which marine birds and mammals rely. I am also concerned about potential disturbance to birds caused by vessel traffic, including the effects of wake on the birds themselves and impacts to their nesting, roosting and foraging areas. The cumulative impacts of Millennium Bulk Terminals are too great to sufficiently mitigate the risks posed to the birds and wildlife dependent upon the health of the Columbia River ecosystem. Greenhouse gas emissions from the proposed Millennium Bulk Terminals would equal 27 million tons per year, making it one of the biggest GHG emitters in the state and increasing Washington's existing emission pollution by approximately 30 percent. Carbon emissions are one of the driving forces behind climate change threatening 314 North American bird species 189 of which call Washington state home for some part of their life cycle. 4 The possibility that this terminal could significantly set back Washington's progressive climate agenda is unacceptable to the people of Washington and the birds and wildlife we are charged to protect. I urge you to choose the No-Action Alternative and reject the Millennium Bulk Terminals coal export proposal. 1 Available at <http://www.whsrn.org/site-profile/columbia-river-estuary>. RE: Millennium Bulk Terminals-Longview SEPA Draft Environmental Impact Statement

Dear Washington Department of Ecology and Cowlitz County:

I support the "no action" alternative in the Millennium Bulk Terminals draft environmental impact statement (EIS). Millennium's proposed coal export terminal would harm communities throughout the Northwest, with the most intense impacts felt in Longview, Washington, near the proposed terminal site. The project harms our health and safety, air and water quality, and natural resources. I urge you to protect public health and natural resources. Reject coal export.

Climate change: Washington state is a national leader in the fight to combat climate change. Considering rail and vessel emissions alone, this project would be one of the biggest greenhouse gas emitters in the state. Coal export undermines the state's hard work to combat climate change and protect future generations.

Health and the environment: The draft EIS reveals many serious impacts to human health and the environment. It dismisses other impacts without a valid basis. The final EIS should incorporate the best available science, real-world examples, and a comprehensive health impact assessment. The agencies undercut public, tribal, and agency input by failing to complete a health impact assessment before releasing the draft EIS.

Rail traffic: The draft EIS demonstrates that Millennium's project would have a severe impact on rail and road congestion. Because Millennium cannot fix this significant harm--from mine to terminal--the agencies should deny permits.

Weak and unenforceable mitigation: In some instances, the draft EIS claims mitigation can reduce coal dust, rail traffic and other project impacts. For example, to mitigate coal dust from the terminal, the draft EIS proposes a reporting process for coal dust complaints. This borders on offensive. A phone call or email to complain about coal dust fouling a person's lungs, home and river is not "mitigation." The agencies should revise the draft EIS and remove inadequate, unsupported and unenforceable mitigation.

Dear Washington State Department of Ecology, We the undersigned support the “No Action” alternative in the Millennium Bulk Terminals Draft Environmental Impact Statement (EIS). This proposal will have significant and detrimental impacts on Montana and the Pacific Northwest. Exporting Montana’s coal will cause air and water pollution, destroy wildlife habitat, create traffic congestion, and increase threats to public safety from increased train traffic. Most importantly, it will escalate climate change. We already have clean, affordable, and renewable alternatives that create thousands of jobs across Montana. We don’t need this destructive project.

Millenium Bulk Comments

Dear U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, Washington Department of Ecology, and Cowlitz County,

I'm writing to urge you to choose the "No Action" alternative for Millennium Bulk Terminals' proposed coal-export facility in Longview, Wash. The proposal threatens community health and safety, air and water quality, and endangered species. I urge your agencies to protect public health and endangered species and say no to coal exports in Longview.

From mines in Montana, across tracks in Idaho, onto barges in Washington, and then through smoke stacks in Asia, coal poses an unacceptable threat to our health and climate. Mining pollution, coal dust, accidental spills, increased diesel exhaust and greenhouse gas emissions would all have significant impacts.

The only reasonable action is to select the No Action Alternative and disallow this coal-export terminal from being built.

Sincerely,

Cybele Knowles

Washington St. Dept. of Ecology
Millennium Bulk Terminals EIS
c/o ICF International
710 Second Avenue, Suite 550
Seattle, WA 98104

Dear Washington State Dept. of Ecology

Put Our Communities Before Coal Exports.

The proposed Millennium Bulk Terminals (MBT) coal export facility in Longview would lead to a dramatic increase in coal train traffic through dozens of Montana communities in order to get coal from Montana and Wyoming mines to the port for shipment to Asia.

This coal train traffic will lead to increased diesel exhaust and coal dust pollution in communities along the tracks, threatening neighbors' health. It will also lead to increased traffic congestion and safety hazards, as ambulances and fire engines risk being trapped at rail crossings behind mile-long trains separating them from emergencies.

The draft Environmental Impact Statement does not assess the rail impacts the MBT would have in Montana. The document acknowledges that trains destined for the port will originate in the Powder River Basin and travel through Montana, but does not study the impacts of increased rail transportation outside of Washington's borders. I request that this issue be addressed in the final EIS.

In addition, coal exports create added pressure for new Montana mines, in a region where coal seams are aquifers and increased mining threatens our land, water, and climate. These impacts are significant and must be taken into account.

The impacts of building a coal port in Longview would be significant. Coal exports would take a toll on Montana and the world. I urge you to deny the permit for the proposed coal port in Longview.

Sincerely,

Kevin Dowling

I fully support this project.

The DEIS should have focused on actual impacts, and only analyzed those that can be discerned and evaluated using credible analyses. For instance, the emission of carbon dioxide into the atmosphere is not an impact. The impacts would be if altered weather patterns and sea level rise if they resulted from the accumulation of carbon dioxide, and other GHGs, in the atmosphere over the course of long time periods. However, the degree of emissions required to cause those impacts is vastly greater than the emissions that can be attributed to this project, even if you incorrectly assume that exported coal will result in incremental new emissions, rather than simply displacing coal that is already available from other sources. Climate change impacts, such as ocean acidification and temperature increases, cannot be attributed to this project because there will be no discernible climate change effect from this project. Emissions from use of the coal exported across this terminal, even if assumed to be incrementally new emissions, are simply too small in comparison to the emissions over long time periods required to change the global climate in measurable ways. Please call it good and issue a final EIS.

Thank you for accepting comments for this important proposal. The Millennium project will do a great deal for the economic outlook of this country. Let's get Americans back to work!

I appreciate the opportunity to add my voice to that of others in supporting the environmental study for the proposed port at Longview. The DEIS will present a clear picture of how Millennium Bulk Terminals will proceed in opening and operating this port and the economic, environmental, and social benefits of this project are deserving of approval.

Isn't an EIS supposed to study the environmental impacts above and beyond what exists today? The old Reynolds site, where Millennium is located, has already been paved, piped and pulled carbon around for 70 years. The permits for this coal export facility were submitted over 4 years ago. Surely it can't take much more time to conduct this environmental review. It's an existing industrial site and it should not take another 70 years to get a permit for redevelopment.

The growing worldwide trade market needs an accessible, dependable, and conscientious facility to conduct business. I appreciate the planning Millennium Bulk Terminals has exhibited in its proposal for the project in Longview and wish to thank the agencies for its consideration in moving this project forward.

Submission Text

I am writing to voice my support for the proposed export facility in Longview that is currently undergoing environmental review.

I am pleased that the Washington Department of Ecology and Cowlitz County concluded that the project area would experience no significant adverse environmental impacts from the port expansion. I am, however, deeply concerned that the draft environmental report recommends that the owners of the terminal mitigate the greenhouse gas (GHG) emissions not only of the project itself but the goods being shipped through the terminal. This is dangerous precedent for manufacturers who export their products, all of which contain an environmental footprint.

Federal and state environmental permitting laws all consistently set the scope of an infrastructure review to local environmental impacts. By forcing the terminal operators to account not only for the local environmental impacts of the port expansion but also the global environmental footprint of the cargo, the Department of Ecology and Cowlitz County are creating a dangerous precedent that could be used to impede exports of all products, not just in Washington but from ports across the country. That is a bad policy for manufacturers, who rely heavily on exports to compete in a global economy.

Thank you for the opportunity to comment. I urge the agencies to issue final permits for this project as quickly as possible and remove language related to the mitigation of emissions from goods being shipped through the terminal.
